

AT THE TENT SHOW.

The theatrical combination under the management of Sol Berliner kept up its reputation for popularity at the tent show given Saturday evening, corner of Alakea and Beretania streets. The big sensation of the evening was the hypnotic work done by "Mesmeriser Hypnotiser" an "unknown" who did some of the best mesmeric work that has been seen here. Some of the boys in blue were got on the stage and went through interesting antics that set the crowd wild. Rosa's songs, American, Hawaiian and Chinese met with the usual hearty and numerous encores. The Chinese acrobats gave splendid exhibitions. The tent was crowded and the cheers of the audience were sufficient to let the people know that the performance meets with approval.

Jackson as an Irish comedian is as good as any ever appearing here and the negro dialect songs by Weaver were fully appreciated and well rendered.

The Hawaiian quartet needs no special mention—it is always good and enjoyable. Three hundred extra seats were placed in position this morning as on Saturday evening many people were turned away for lack of room.

Police Court Notes.

Eighteen cases of drunkenness came up in the District Court this forenoon. The usual fine was imposed.

Waiala and Pipilihi were fined $5 and costs each on the charge of affray. Other cases went over until to-morrow and Wednesday.

Death of an Infant.

The eleven days old infant of Mr. and Mrs. E. Suhr died at the home in Nuuanu Valley at about 9 o'clock Sunday night. The remains were interred in Nuuanu Cemetery at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

"SIDE TRACKED" POPULAR.

A crowded house greeted the Jules Walters Company Saturday night in the Orpheum. "Side Tracked" is a play abounding in funny situations with a smattering of dramatic incidents all of which were portrayed with marked ability. Jules Walters and Louise Llewellyn carried off the honors of the evening. Ada Walters made a hit with her high class dancing. "Side Tracked" is a play in which Jules Walters has made a name for himself throughout the States, and the company he has with him is of a character that brings out the many good points of the piece.

Scandia Notes.

The Scandia got away for Manila at about 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon. There was a large crowd on the wharf to say good bye to the boys. As the Scandia pulled out into the stream, three cheers for Honolulu came from her decks.

All morning and close to the time of departure of the Scandia, a squad of eight men with a lieutenant and sergeant at the head, marched about the streets, gathering up the soldiers whom they happened to find on the streets. A request was also sent to the police station to the effect that the police arrest any soldiers found on the streets. Several were locked up until called for.

Marianne Missionaries.

The brothers L. and J. J. Castino are going to Guam in the Ladrones, or Marianne group, upon the first opportunity. They are natives of those islands and their object in returning there, now that the American flag gives freedom of religion to the inhabitants, is to do missionary work as evangelists. L. Castino is the telephone lineman who preaches on the streets here every day at noon.

SUNDAY PAPER.

Wm. H. Marshall, lately advertising solicitor for the BULLETIN, will begin the publication of a Sunday newspaper next Sunday. It will be named The Sunday Volcano. Its contents will be literary as well as newsy, and the projector says it will be bright and sparkling. He is meeting with good success in his canvass for advertisements and subscriptions. Mr. Marshall has had much newspaper experience on the Coast, and has proved here to be a live man as well as a facile writer.

BATTLESHIP OREGON HERE

Orders Have Not Yet Been Made Public—Will Probably Sail for Manila in About Ten Days—Capt. Parker Calls.

The U. S. Battleship Oregon, Captain Parker commanding, arrived off port early Sunday afternoon and came to an anchor outside. She sailed from Callao, January 11, stopping at the Galapagos Islands a couple of days, taking on coal. From there, she sailed for Hilo direct, making that port February 4. There she landed Dr. Stephenson, and Assistant Engineers Mallory and Eckhardt.

A crowd collected on the wharves to see the big battleship that had made such a good record in the Santiago fight, after having made a brilliant and perilous run from South America. They were, however, very much disappointed, as the Oregon did not come into port and will not come into the harbor at all, although the pilots say it is perfectly safe for her to do this at high tide. She draws about twenty-seven feet. Lighters will be used to coal the Oregon. According to present arrangements, the ship will remain here about ten days and will then proceed to Manila. The collier Scandia and the water distilling steamer Iris, following the Oregon, are expected here the latter part of the week.

Captain Barber has received his orders but has, as yet, not made their purport public. There are rumors that the Oregon may go to Samoa.

This morning Captain Barber and Lieut. Eberle, his flag lieutenant, called at the United States Consulate, on Special Agent H. M. Sewall and President Dole.

IMPORTANT ROAD ORDERED

At the meeting of the Executive Council this morning, a mile stretch of road at Kapaukaea was authorized to be constructed. It is on the main route between Hilo and Hamakua, being a section not let when contracts for the rest of the road were awarded.

The opening of certain lands in Kohala was authorized, in accordance with the recommendation of the Land Commission.

There was more discussion of the new Honolulu cemetery question without reaching a decision.

CHARGED WITH GROSS CHEAT.

A warrant is out for the arrest of A. J. Stanmore on the charge of gross cheat and police officers on duty have been ordered to keep a specially sharp lookout for the man. It is believed at police headquarters that he got away for Manila in the Scandia.

When Jas. Sherwood, former manager of Long Branch, went to Manila, the business at that resort was put into the hands of Stanmore and Al Moore, two former soldiers in the regular army here.

Recently, several young men of the city deposited with Stanmore, sums varying from $300 to $1000. They had made arrangements to buy Stanmore's share in Long Branch and the money was for that purpose.

The disappearance of Stanmore has made these men very anxious and they have sworn out the warrant spoken of. On investigation, they state they have found that Stanmore owned no interest whatever in Long Branch. Now they want their money back.

Chief Clerk Hassinger of the Interior office sold by auction at noon the lease for 30 years of lot 59, E. plaude. It fell to the Hawaiian Electric Co. at $620 per annum. The upset rental was $480. E. B. Thomas was a competitor for the lease.

AN INVALID NAVY OFFICER

Engineer Middleton Detained in Honolulu With Broken Collar Bone.

Went to Manila in U. S. S. Charleston—Served in Culoa—Coming Home to Mare Island Meets With Accident.

H. E. Middleton, who was one of the engineers in the U. S. S. Charleston when that ship went to Manila, has been at the Queen's Hospital since the arrival of the steamer Coptic. Mr. Middleton was on his way home under orders to report at Mare Island Navy Yard. In rough weather he had the misfortune to have a fall on board the Coptic which resulted in his collar bone being broken. He was removed from the steamer at this port and placed in the hospital.

A BULLETIN reporter visiting the hospital on Saturday met Mr. Middleton and was introduced to him by Mr. Eckhardt. The disabled engineer at the time was just setting out for a walk. His wearing of an empty sleeve thrust into his coat pocket was startling at first sight, but a bulging under his clothes indicated the missing arm in a sling.

Mr. Middleton was quite cheerful and ready to swap information. He was pleased to hear of the favorable progress of the navy personnel bills in Congress. "It will be a good thing for the navy," was his remark, "but a little hard on the engineers. They will all have to pass an examination in navigation."

At Manila Mr. Middleton was given duty on board the supply ship Culoa, one of the vessels brought out from England.

In answer to a question, Mr. Middleton said the conditions at Manila, when he left, were not quite all that could be desired, but showed a great improvement over what existed at the American occupation. A gang of convicts is constantly employed in cleaning the streets. Exasperating blockades of traffic at the bridge over the Passig river were now prevented by the military guards. On one occasion, Mr. Middleton was detained half an hour in a carriage at the entrance to the bridge. Now the guards compel carriages to keep on the right, and when there is a jam straighten things out in short order.

"I don't think there will be much fighting between the Americans and the insurgents," said Mr. Middleton replying to a question. "There is no fight in the Philippines, excepting with a knife in a dark lane. I saw them drilling and it was very amusing. They tried to imitate the Americans, extending out in line."

"One man would have his gun over the shoulder, another under the arm, a third brandishing his weapon like a club, and so on—scarcely any two handling their guns alike. The marching was even more ludicrous. An order such as 'two left' given, and the men got into a perfect tangle. When the officers go along the line, prodding the men into place with the points of the swords."

"If the insurgents make an attack in the open, they will be easily taken care of. But if they retire into the back country and the hills, I am afraid they would make serious trouble. There would be great havoc among the American troops in following them up, not so much from rebel bullets as from fever, etc."

The Y. P. S. C. E. met in Central Union church last evening. Papers on the founding of the society in Portland, Me., eighteen years ago, were read by Prof. French of Punahou and Miss Kate Kelley. Other papers on the growth and work of the society, were read later.

OPIUM FROM U. S. S. SCANDIA

J. Lynch, a sailor of the U. S. S. Scandia crew, was captured by Custom House Inspector A. W. Neeley at the Irmgard wharf at about 10 o'clock Saturday night and the charge of unlawful possession of opium has been lodged against him. Lynch was caught red handed with 43 tins of opium in his possession.

Inspector Neeley learned there was opium aboard the Scandia and that an attempt would be made to land it Saturday night as the troopship was to leave next day. Acting on this information, he stationed himself near the Iron Works where he could see the Scandia plainly at the Irmgard wharf, himself remaining in the shadows.

This was close to 10 o'clock. It was not very long before Lynch, dressed in blue, and another sailor in white, went toward the ship from the direction of Nuuanu street.

Neeley shifted his position and got behind the mooring post between the Irmgard and Brewer's wharves. Watching closely, he saw Lynch go up a rope at the bow of the Scandia. A bucket was let down and his partner below put two bottles of whiskey inside this receptacle. The bucket was hauled up and then the sailor in white clothes went up the rope.

Immediately afterwards, Lynch came down the rope and walked about peering into the shadowy places. Satisfying himself there was no one around, he went back to a position near the bow of the ship. Soon there was a thud and a package landed on the ground near him. Another thud and another bundle. When the third reached the ground, Lynch gathered it up in his arms and was in the act of reaching for another, when Neeley stepped up. He did not make his identity known at once but proceeded to examine into the contents of the packages. Lynch objected to this but Neeley kept on. When he found opium he threw open his coat and showed his badge. Lynch gave up then and there and was marched to the police station with the opium. He protested, however, saying he knew nothing about the matter. It was the other man.

The case will come up tomorrow.

A Good Issue.

The Anglican Church Chronicle for February is packed with a well balanced assortment of matter edifying and interesting. Seven pages of advertisements would make it appear that the periodical is receiving a goodly support from the community in which it is certainly an elevating power.

W. E. Bivens has moved from 315 Fort street to new offices in the McInerney Block opposite Bank of Hawaii.

Teas that we'll sell to you by honest sixteen-ounce weight.

Teas that you may examine in broad daylight before you hand your money over.

Teas that have never been "manipulated" since they left the drying pans.
